The Universalist Church will hold its services for the season next week, July 8th. The closing is one week earlier than usual to give Rev. Mr. Miller an opportunity to visit relatives in the Middle West.

Frank J. McCarthy, proprietor of Wasce Cottage by the lake, is clever but fate won't let him have it. "Mac" drove his car off the road near his retreat for tourists and stuck there. All kind of ingenious schemes were tried to release the wagon and back out of the predicament and considerable forceable English skill but the car remained glued to earth. A lone wayfarer discovered "Mac's" near sightedness for the auto had straddled a stump in a way to hold the machine fast. Strange to say "Mac" had rested on the same stump while struggling to diagnose the disease. He overlooked the simple cause while trying to grasp a big idea.

Showers defeated the ball game Thursday afternoon. Del Bissonette's Star Taxis arrived on time from Lewiston but the disinterested weatherman beat him to it with a pelting storm. A rift in the clouds gave the Twin Towns management hope and word was broadcasted the game would be pulled off late in the afternoon. More rain before the stated hour settled the question for the day and the game was declared off.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Hutchins and Mr. and Mrs. John Hutchins motored to Gardner recently and visited the family of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lusselle. John Lusselle the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Lusselle returned to Norway with the party for a visit.

A bald eagle is making his headquarters at Lake Pennessewassee and has been seen frequently the past two weeks. Many who have not seen him, but have heard his harsh cry, take the song is anything but delightful. Micky Welch estimates the eagle has a spread of at least six feet.

She and her mother, Mrs. B. S. Riddick, are to occupy the Congregational parsonage at 19 Winter street for the summer during the absence of Rev. O. E. Barnard and family.

Twin Towns 2; Dixfield 0

The Twins blanked the Dixfield's at the Fair Grounds, Saturday afternoon in a pitchers battle featuring Farmer Claud Hunt of Norway and Roy Fowler, star for the visitors. Aside from the bad upheaval in the first session, allowing the Twins a pair of runs, there was little on Dixfield. Both teams fielded sharply and numerous close plays were executed. Fowler held the Twins to five singles and the two-town bunch failed to land on the sphere with any certainty. Hunt made his first appearance this year on the mound and showed excellent form, especially during the last three innings. He allowed four hits, one a double, but these were scattered and only in the fourth did the visitors really look dangerous as run getters.

Dixfield played Santa Claus during their first session in the field. P. Loud, the first Twin up, was passed but was forced out at second by his elder brother B. Loud on a steamer to Emery. Whitte won first on an error at that spot; Mac terman died to Hillman, who reluctantly muffed the pill; Kirkstein was hit by Fowler and walked, Fuller did his duty with the stick and Keville closed the inning. This combination netted the only scores for the entire game. Two hits in fifth and seventh handed runners, but sharp fielding and a strike-out closed both sessions without a crossing.

Dixfield looked good for a tally in the fourth when Dunham led off with a two sacker in deep center. Small made first on F. Loud's muff, who covered the initial sack in the play. This runner was caught napping by Hunt and declared out. Farmer Hunt retired pipped by the air route and Witherrill rapped to Kirkstein and retired. Dunham's run failed to count.

The eighth also gave indications of breaking the goose egg when Emery walked, and Witherrill singled to center; landing Emery on third. Dunham fanning closed the inning and smothered a rally.

Norway Water Co. is connecting George LaFrance house on the Cole estate with the main on Fair street, a distance of some 80 feet. While Frank LaFrance was digging the trench he found a bar of several links from a man's watch chain. This was found and given to him. The watch was declared to be gold by an expert. Conditions indicated the jewelry had been in earth many years. Bones were also located near the spot, but no claim is made they were ever the framework of man.

Hiram Clark has enlarged the Neighborhood Store on Beal street. By removing partitions he has a room 18x24. He is building a barber shop 12x14 feet on the rear of the store.

Freeman C. Smith Jr. the youngster run over by automobile and injured, is recovering rapidly. Mrs. Smith will visit the hospital Sunday and expects to bring the boy home.

A spot under the pines near the "cellar hole" on Morris Klain's property behind the village has been selected for a tourist camping ground. The Norway Board of Trade has put up a small building containing a stove for cooking, with other kitchen conveniences. The camp site is on dry land, near a spring and there is room for all. Several parties occupied the place Tuesday.

Mrs. John H. Fletcher is having an addition built on her cottage at Sand Pond. Carl Schenk was in town Wednesday with his son, Robert, the first time in seven weeks. Mr. Schenk is improving in health.

FOURTH OF JULY GAMES

Twin Towns, 5; Deering 0

Deering was blanked in the forenoon game at the County fair grounds, Tuesday. "Farmer" Hunt occupied the mound for the Twins and held the seacrest outfit to four singles, and laid seven low by the air route. Woodbury, the well known star was less fortunate with six singles and a double against him, and only four disposed of at the plate. Ragged support in pinches contributed in a measure to the whitewash application.

The game wasn't too bad until the seventh as the Twins had coasted across, but two runs. The big inning developed a brace of hard hits and loose fielding, allowing three runners to caper home with little exertion. About 500 attended. The score:

Star Taxis 1—Twin Towns 0

Lewiston blanked the Twins during the afternoon show by a narrow squeak in the ninth. Air tight baseball was played along the whole line and no errors recorded. Everybody worked smoothly and mound hurlers could ask no better support. Benson who performed for the Twins, shaded his opponent Buckland by a comfortable margin. He held the Taxies to three singles and a double, he fanned eight and walked one. Buckland was touched for six singles and a two sacker and put the three strike clamp on three batters. He also issued one free walk. Everything went blank until the last inning when with a safe hit, a sacrifice and two sacker the visitors landed the run. Twin Towns made a grand offering to equal that play in their last half. White doubled and Fuller whanged away a neat single. With two in the circuit, being the score appeared certain. A squeeze play expecting to score Kenney who was running for White fanned flat, and the next batter fanning closed the door for this time. It sure was a great game and bristling with thrills. Some 2000 attended and excitement ran high.

More Fire Truck Tests

John Davis of Cambridge, Mass. demonstrator with the Mac motor fire truck, gave this apparatus exhaustive tests during his stay, demonstrating under many conditions actual performance of the rotary pump.

On the Pike Hill test the pump was attached to a hydrant on a dead end near the foot of the hill and hose laid to F. Stone's residence. Pressure from the water system was approximately 85 pounds and a fair stream thrown. After the pump went into action, pressure of 215 pounds was registered and the stream forced 150 feet beyond the mark registered by the hydrant alone. A similar test was made near Judge Jones residence on Pleasant street and satisfactory results obtained.

This particular apparatus in the Mack Standard type A. C. 2 with full equipment weighs about seven tons. The pump is a 500 gallon Mack Northern rotary with two speed transmission, air chamber, sure-relief valve, hand churn valve, one side control of discharge valves and other features. Two 100 foot lengths 4 1/2 inch hard suction hose with heavy brass couplings are carried and a miscellaneous equipment needed at the majority of fires. The pump will draw between twenty and thirty feet on suction without the hose collapsing and handle four streams.

Frequently the motor is used for municipal work and attachments can be had for tractor service and easily applied. A plow for breaking roads in winter has been made for this type.

In addition to a gift of $2,500 toward the purchase price, L. M. Carroll offers the corporation could arrange permanent housing. The price is $10,500 with 15 percent off leaving about $7,000 for the voters to raise should they so desire.

Peg O' My Heart

The Trumbull Players appeared in Peg O' My Heart at Norway Opera House, Saturday evening. Owing to the rain and counter attractions, the attendance was not large, but the performance was carried out in full. Those who witnessed the performance were delighted with the highest quality shown in dramatic service and artistic expression. A well balanced cast portrayed the characters in the story in an easy manner which gave the impression of reality and not mere acting.

The players expect to return Friday evening, July 14th and offer another strong production from their repertory of twelve standard plays.

Norway Grange

Young People's Night was observed at Norway Grange on Saturday, June 24th with a large attendance. The following program was well carried out:

Music—Singing in pairs. The Grange Quartet, Vern Knigthy, Viola solo. Eleanor Brown, Lawrence Brown, Duet. Eleanor Brown, Lawrence Brown, Violin solo. Norval Brown.

After the program the young people and some of the older ones played games until a late hour. Ice cream and cake and saltines were served.

July 8th will be Children's Day and the program is in charge of Mrs. Winnie Herrick, Mrs. Eva Jackson, Mrs. Eva Richardson, Mrs. Hazel Hunt and Mrs. Bachelder. All children of Grange families are expected to be present and to assist in the exercises.

Grange will be called to order at 1:30 and open meeting for the children at 2 p. m.

Lucky number valz will be featured at the Lake View Casino, Friday evening. A box of chocolates will be given away on that number.

Twin Towns have drawn August for their game at the Lewistown tournament Saturday. Lewiston Taxis will play Portland. Games in these events play the final wind-up late in the afternoon. A plump purse is hung up for the games.

Manufacturers of the White fire truck will demonstrate their apparatus here probably the latter part of the week.

On the night of our Glorious Fourth a crowd collected around the house of George Bennett on Whitman street firing guns and yelling at the top of their voices. The house was shaken by the jar and the doorbell rang repeatedly.

Mrs. Bennett had retired. Mrs. Bennett has been sick and under a doctor's care for some time. The terrible noise was torture to her and she begged her husband to try and quiet them. In desperation she opened the door herself and called out: "Do you want to kill a sick woman?" As she said the words a man came close to the steps and set off more fireworks.

She quickly retreated and shut herself in her room as she heard the steps on the stairs coming up her stairs. The noise lasted about an hour. It has been remarked that we talk very eloquently about defending the weak and helpless, but how about an affair like this?

Jack Edgeworth from the Oxford Spring Sanatorium canvassed the town Wednesday with a magazine for the "service men" and others interested in the American Legion or in the boys' camp treatment at the various institutions. He was First Sgt. in 17th Co. 4th Regt. M. M. D. M. A. wounded in action and gassed. Since the war closed he has been treated in the hospitals at Fort McHenry, Portsmouth, N. H., the Walter Reed Hospital and at Camp Merritt, N. J. During the last six weeks at Oxford he has gained in health and speaks highly of the treatment at the various institutions.

George Stevens of South Paris, the new motorcycle cop for the state is on duty and patrolling the concrete roads in both villages when not elsewhere. He was busy Tuesday and covered 141 miles in this vicinity. Numerous speed manias were stopped and given warning.

The Fourth was ushered in with some noise from numerous celebrators wandering the streets, but rain checked the customary racket and very little transfer or destruction of movable property was in evidence. The bunch officiating on the bell rope at the Universalist church was not content to use the privilege in a legitimate way, but ascended to the belfry and damaged the wheel considerably.

The streets were patrolled until day break. Night officer Earl Barker had several constables assisting in preserving order.

Shepard's Barn Dedicated

"The Barn" on the John Shepard estate at Crockett's Ridge was officially dedicated in grand style Saturday night with a regular housewarming. Rain failed to dampen the enthusiasm of several hundred people who journeyed by automobiles from far and near. The large dancing surface was crowded, many not caring for the sport remained in the cars and listened to the Norway-Paris band orchestra and watched the merry makers. Every body praised the excellent floor, for Ned Shepard who is manager of the estate, worked hard to make the surface one of the best around these parts.

Refreshments were served in a booth handy to the patrons. The spacious barn and surroundings were lighted by electricity and plenty of parking space was available.

A popular concert rendered by the Norway-Paris band from 7:30 to 8:30 with a drawing card and each selection loudly applauded. All admit the band gave a strong program. Patronage from the summer colony about able remedy. I had more or less pain across my back and kidneys which annoyed me when stooping or lifting. I found Doan's Kidney Pills good for the trouble and after I used this remedy the pains lessened. I have been practically free from the trouble since taking Doan's and feel they deserve my recommendation."

(Statement given June 7, 1916.)

On September 3, 1920, Mrs. Payne said: "The statement I made still holds good. I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as highly today as I have during the several years past. The great good they did me has lasted and my faith in Doan's has remained firm."

GOD KNOWETH WHAT IS BEST

He knows what is best when he callest.
The little ones home to His fold.
He knows what is best when he callest.
The ones that are growing old and tired.
He knows when the feet are tired
Walking the long, hard road,
And so he calls his loved ones home.
To His blest abode.

He knows what is best for us ever,
At noon or night,
When the moon is bright and shining,
And as darker grows the night.
And so he calls us home.
To the land of the happy and blest,
God knows what is best.
He knows when the heart is weary
And the eyes are heavy and dim,
And he calls us to fair green pastures,
Forever to live with Him.
He knows when the daylight fades away
And the sun has gone to rest,
We are safe forever with Him at last.
God knows what is best.

Written by Mrs. Viola Herrick, in her Patch
Mt. home.

ADD INTEREST TO YOUR FARM

A few years ago there was a move made to have the names painted on the mail boxes and nearly all the farms along the roads were labelled in this way.
It was a decidedly convenient idea and it still carried out more completely would be of even more advantage. People, strangers in a community, enjoy reading the names of the residents of the farms and nearly all the roads are now some one is endeavoring to locate a certain place, how much easier and more convenient to glance at the mail box and see who the occupant of the place is,
than it is to follow down the road way
and then try to find the place.

Now-a-days that there are so many autos passing over our country roads and the little items show progress and leave a good impression of the locality in the minds of the passers-by—there's no knowing what the impression may lead to.

A State road or any improved road is a big help to a locality through which it passes and it is of interest to note after a new stretch of road is put in how soon it is before the people along the road become more interested in their home farms and the unsightly places are soon removed and the many repairs and improvements added until after one would hardly recognize the place as the place of old. Add the little touches that beautify the place both for the enjoyment of the traveler and the satisfaction of yourself and family—it all helps.

KNOCKING THE TOWN

Every town has "knockers." Peeping through green goggles they observe a multitude of imaginary dragons and satanic foes, all working the community for profit with selfish motives.

They call the merchants cheats, striving to squeeze the last cent out of the poor people. The farmers are cheats, striving to get all the town's money working on the roads. The town officers are no good, the tax assessors make taxes just as high as they can every year and the committee has no interest in the schools. All together things are in an awful muddle. The streets have no names because they say the citizens would fight so about the names proposed. The Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce they say will surely die because there is no public spirit. Roads are growing poorer every year and the schools are falling below the standard. They allege the farmers are a bad lot and the villagers are not much better. There is no public spirit in town and we might give up everything and lay me down and die.

This is the familiar rant of the town knockers. Let every patriotic citizen take account of stock and make the charges a basis for personal investigation. There may be a grain of truth in some of the charges, for humanity has a long journey before the land of usefulness is reached. Some merchants profiteer, many farmers deliberately conceal poor fruit in the bottom of the basket. Town officers and those holding public trust have used their position for selfish purposes. Nevertheless all are not bad for the majority are law abiding, progressive and loyal to the interests of the community.

To neutralize the sinister impressions, let every citizen consider his town a good place in which to live, move and have a being. Boost at every opportunity and stand pat with every individual or group of progressive citizens promoting ideas for public betterment.

The state department of agriculture is co-operating in a movement which may prove to be the beginning of the revival of an almost forgotten industry, that of cheese making in Maine.

Our Ancestors Treated Constipation Naturally

Constipation is as old as the world. Most people must fight it from birth to death. Some use harsh cathartics or metallic drugs that force relief, but do not strengthen the organs so that they perform their functions normally.

Our early ancestors turned to Nature for pleasant relief. From herbs, bark, roots and leaves blessed with laxative properties, they prepared a pleasant effective extract. Such a remedy as our forefathers made is Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. Prescribed for his patients originally seventy-one years ago by Dr. J. P. True, a conscientious Maine country doctor, it has become a household favorite. Contains no metallic drugs—just pure extracts that purify the bowels as they cleanse. Used over 70 years. 40c, 60c, $1.20.

How the Famous Disc Clutch of the Buick "Four" Proved Itself

The same design of disc clutch that was used in the powerful war tanks is likewise used in the Buick Four.

The Buick clutch under the most grueling conditions, has proved itself absolutely positive, dependable, and easy to operate—a clutch that demonstrated the same certainty and safety for unforeseen emergency that it did for ordinary service.

This thoroughly trustworthy unit is a development of 20 years consistent effort. It is typically representative of the standards governing the construction of the Buick Four throughout.

HOW ABOUT MAINE?

That the State of Maine has not even held its own for the ten years can be seen from the fact that the total increase in population from 1910 to 1920 was 25,643, or 31.2 percent, while the increase in Portland, South Portland, Auburn-Lewiston, Saco-Biddeford and Bath was 26,497, or 82.4 more than the total for the State.

The valuation of property for taxing purposes increased during the same 10 years $185,623,314 or 41 percent.

The rural population in nearly every county in the State decreased. The above shows a very unhealthy condition of affairs.

If it is true that Maine possesses wonderful soil, climate, scenery, water powers, forests, etc., why are we not progressing instead of going back? Have we any definite reliable information of what we have, where it is and how we are handling it? Are we capable of handling it better?

The State Chamber of Commerce and Agricultural League believes that we have a wonderful State, that we are capable of handling it well, although we are not at present doing so. In the hope of obtaining correct information, the State Chamber is asking the local Chambers to make a survey of their locality—agricultural, industrial, tourist, fisheries, etc. The plan is to do this by counties, asking the organizations in each county to arrange with representatives of every town in their county. Uniform information blanks will be prepared.

There will be possibilities for increasing business every part of the State through the State Fair, Coastwise and Trans-Atlantic Lines will run regularly to Portland, if assurance can be given them of tonnage. This will open an entirely new outlet for all kinds of Maine products, agricultural as well as manufactured. It will be necessary however, to know what we have in the way of tonnage and whether we desire to ship any of it over the Pier. The value of this Pier to the State will depend upon the use made of it by Maine interests. This survey for study should demonstrate whether use can and will be made of it. Its future rests with the people of the State, not with the Commissioners appointed to build it.

We believe that volunteer workers can be found in every town of the State to make this survey.

AN IDEAL INVESTMENT

Albert W. Atwood, one of the best known writers on the subject of finance and investment, has recently written a very important article for the Saturday Evening Post under the title "Protecting the Small Investor." In the course of that article he writes of Treasury Savings Certificates, using the sub-title, "An Ideal Investment," of which he says: "To cannot be stated with too much emphasis that anyone who really wants a safe investment with a good interest return can secure the same without the slightest difficulty. On December fifteen last the wife of the President of the United States purchased from Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, the first Treasury Savings Certificate sold by the United States Government. These are now on sale at all post offices, and many banks, and can be had by mail direct from the Treasury Department. They pay 25 per cent on the money invested for a five-year period. They are guaranteed by the Government to pay this figure, and guaranteed against any decline in price. They are beyond question the safest and surest investment available to any American citizen, and if they are not good, then nothing is in the world. "There has been a lot of talk and cheap platitudes about the necessity and advantages of thrift and savings, but a man cannot dig a garden without tools and he cannot save without a secure place to put his money. A splendid work is done by the savings banks, but they do not cover the entire country by any means. There are millions of people whom they do not reach. Life insurance covers an even wider field, but it is only partially a savings and investment proposition. The Government, the one at last, after much experimenting during and following the war it has devised a permanent form of small investment, which is simple, convenient and which meets the needs of all except the wealthiest classes.

"These certificates are always sold at the same price, $20, $50 and $100. In five years they are paid off at $25, $100 and $1000 respectively. This is 4 1/2 per cent interest, compounded semi-annually. It is 25 per cent in five years. There is no state or local tax on these certificates and no normal Federal income tax. Any individual can buy as much as $5000 each year, and the same amount is available to any member of his family. They can be redeemed at any time before the five years are up, at the full amount paid, plus 3 1/2 per cent interest, by sending them to the Treasury Department. Since the name of the owner is registered at Washington the loss of the certificate does not mean the loss of the investment. There is no risk, depreciation in value or promoter or broker's commission to pay, there is liberal interest and an immediate cash withdrawal value."

AUTO CAMPING

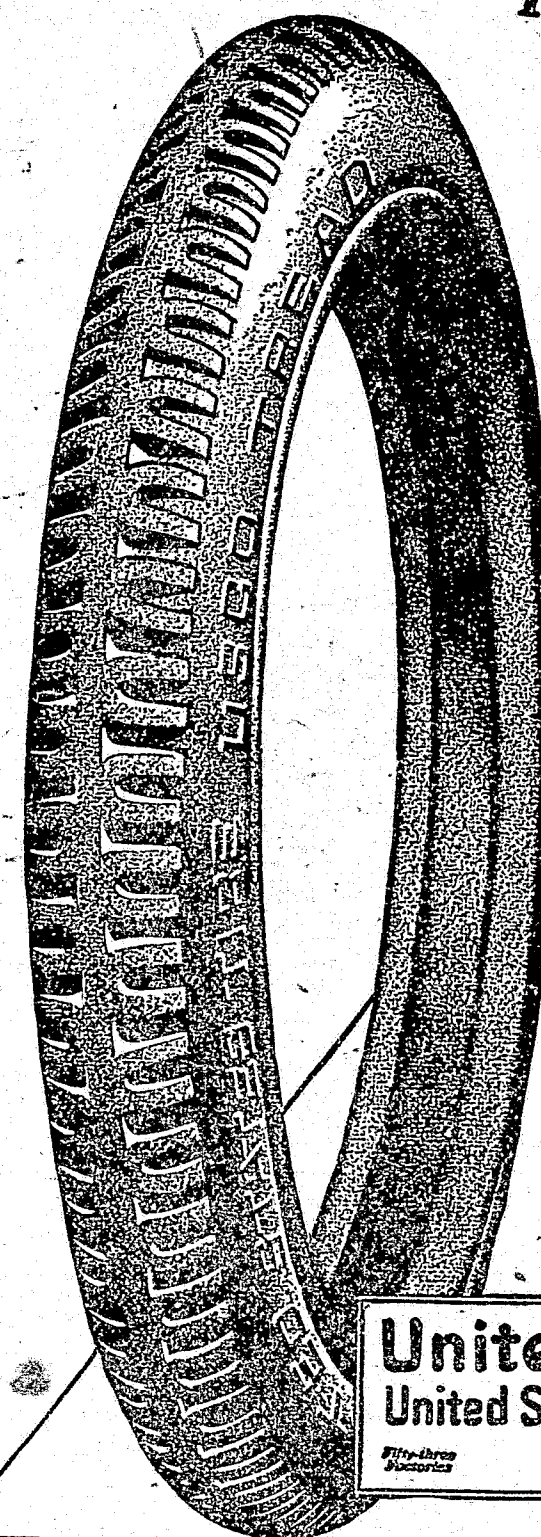

Auto camping is becoming the rage with tourists and many camp sites are being provided by the State of New Hampshire for tourists, thus attracting many to this section. A number of these camp sites are maintained by the federal government as a part of the United States Forest Reserve which has been set aside by the government to preserve the New Hampshire forests and to afford a playground for New Englanders. A permit to build fires in the forest reserve together with a large map of New Hampshire may be had free by making application to the United States Forester at Concord. One of the beautiful sites in the heart of the White Mountains is Dolly Copp grounds located between the Glen House and Gorham. The federal government keeps the grounds up and there is excellent water, fireplaces, shelter log hut, wood for fires and other camp conveniences.

The air is full of discussion about religion and while it is true that denominational lines are weakening there is still evidence that the union desired most is like that of the lion and the lamb. When one standard of Christian character is made the big thing in life, there will be a coming together that will mean a higher level of thought and activity than yet has been reached. The world hungers for this higher union above the level of all denominationalism. Some day it will become a reality.

MAINE'S SHARE FOR ROADS

The State of Maine will receive from the Federal Government $463,440 from the appropriation of $190,000,000 carried in the Post Office Appropriation bill, which has been signed by President Harding. This money is to be expended during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, for road construction. Of the $190,000,000 appropriated by Congress, $50,000,000 is authorized for the next fiscal year, and $65,000,000 and $75,000,000 respectively is authorized for each of the two succeeding fiscal years.

The funds appropriated by Congress for good roads in the various states must be matched by the several commonwealths themselves, which will be required to maintain all federal aid roads constructed. In case these roads are not maintained, any federal aid funds available for new projects, may be withheld until they are put into satisfactory condition. All federal aid funds must be spent on a connected system of roads consisting of more than seven per cent of the total mileage in each state and divided into primary or interstate roads and secondary or intercounty roads.

FRYEBURG

In the Probate Court of Plymouth county, Mass., the will of the late Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Chandler Charles of Pembroke, Mass., was allowed, and is of interest to Fryeburg people. Her husband, Dr. Orlando W. Charles of Pembroke and Albert P. Barker of West Bridgewater were appointed executors. The will disposes of personal property valued at $35,000.

The will leaves $30,000 in trust, the income of which, during his lifetime, is for her husband, Dr. Charles, if he so requests, but if he makes no such request, the interest is to be allowed to accumulate until his death, when the trustee is to pay out the net income, annually, $1,000, to the trustees of the Congregational Church of this town, for the support of preaching and this is to be known as the "Mary S. Chandler Fund."

It is also provided in the will that of the net income, there is to be a payment annually of $3,000 to be divided in equal shares between three needy and worthy students in Fryeburg Academy, these to be designated by the teachers and trustees of the academy, acting jointly, and the three shares to be as the Paul Langdon, Elizabeth Chandler and Dr. Orlando W. Charles free scholarships. In case Fryeburg Academy ceases to exist the $3,000 is to be added to the Joseph and Mary Chandler educational fund.

The income of the residue, together with the increase is to be divided and paid annually for tuition or expenses or both, of worthy and needy students of this town, who desire to continue their studies beyond the schools of the town, this endowment to be called the Joseph and Mary Chandler Educational Fund.

Mrs. Charles was the only child of the late Joseph and Mary S. Chandler of Fryeburg Center, and she and her husband received their preparatory education at Fryeburg Academy. She leaves no children.

WHERE THE PROFITS GO

Here is a story worth considering as many farmers have timber on their farms. It is a good object lesson that shows where the profits go. The writer says: "Twelve years ago I sold a few thousand and feet to a portable saw-mill which was working on a lot adjacent to me and wanted a little more than that lot furnished to make up an order. It was twelve years ago. And the boards and stumps. The saw-mill operator offered me $6.50 a thousand for all I had on sixty acres of forest-clad mountains, just as it stood. Today that timber is still standing, bigger and better than it was twelve years ago. And the boards and beams which can be saved out of it sell for more than double what similar lumber sold for twelve years ago. But I own and would be seller of the raw material can get no offer of over $5 a thousand for it—$1.50 a thousand less than I was actually offered a dozen years ago, when sawn lumber sold for half what it now fetches!"

WHY IS IT?

In these days, when so many are out of work, either because of strikes or because of poor business, which keeps factories running on partial time, if they run at all, it seems strange that no more of the idle are willing to take a good job on a farm, where they will not only get fair pay but board and lodging thrown in. It is a wholesome work, too far more so than in a close stuffy shop.

And yet the farmer's labor problem seems just about as great as it did at the time of the worst labor shortage. A man only a few weeks ago asked a professional man what he should do. He was out of work, had only earned a few dollars in weeks, and had spent all his savings.

"I'll find you a job at once," said the professional man, "where you can make good pay, and get your board and lodging."

"What's that?" queried the idle one, his eyes opening wide at what sounded so good.

"Just out here on a farm. In a splendid home," was the answer.

"Nothing doing," was the speedy verdict. Why is it?

In this connection, the Franklin Journal-Transcript says: "One of the most prosperous farmers in Merrimack County, a man who has all his life made a study of and, stock and crops, recently told that he could not hire a man today to work on the farm and have the man earn enough to pay his wages. In other words, the money which he pays his hired men is more than he can get for his crops, to say nothing of any time he has on the land or any profit for himself. This being the case, there is not much hope of the actual necessities of life in the food line, coming down. Or we might state it this way: The cost of what the farmer raises is now at its lowest, it is time that other things came to a like level."—Rochester Courier.

THE HOME OF YESTERDAY AND TO-DAY

Not long ago, Professor Palmer of Harvard contrasted the Puritan home and the modern home with the insight of a philosopher. He finds that the Puritan home was closely centered about a few worth-while and abiding interests like education, work and religion. The interests of the modern home are as scattered as its personnel. It has more freedom, tolerance and a greater variety of interests and amusements than the old home. Many of the values the Puritan home had, the modern home lacks, and some things of value that the modern home has, the Puritan home lacked. Nor has the complete home yet been very fully attained. After twenty-five years of testing, it seems to many educators that the modern home does not awaken the hunger for knowledge or inspire the sense of duty that the earlier home did. Can the modern home combine duty with freedom, and a dedication to education and religion with a variety of pleasures and interest? Perhaps it is too soon to judge whether the home can do this, but its reflection in the educational record is not reassuring.—Minneapolis Journal.

When a mother is looking for a place for her boy, and says that "wages are no object," she doesn't mean it. She means that while her boy is worth a hundred dollars a week, she is willing for him to work for twelve, to start on.

Portland Man Writes About His Recovery

Sixteen Years of Catarrh Ended and He has Gained 17 Pounds, Says Mr. Ackley—Gives Tanlac Credit

"Tanlac has done so much for me that I have written the factory a personal letter about it," said T. B. Ackley, 126 Pearl Street, Portland, Maine.

"For sixteen years, a bad form of catarrh simply made life miserable for me. I got up mornings feeling stifled and choked up and had an awful time clearing up my throat and head. My blood was thin and my circulation was poor, but my appetite failed me so that I lost considerable weight and strength. Gas would form on my stomach and I had severe pains around my heart, in my back and under my shoulder blades. I slept very little at night and never felt fit to work."

But Tanlac did me of all my troubles and now I feel better and stronger in every way; in fact, I've gained seventeen pounds in weight. Tanlac did the work for me after everything else failed and I'm convinced it will do all they claim it will."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

ABOUT THE STARS

A man clothed in fur trousers, a one piece fur coat reaching to his hips and including a fur helmet, walking on skis in winter boots, a ski pole in his hand. Such a man you might say was an Esquimaux, no, he was an astronomer going to his winter night's work. The great dome which shows over the snow drifts is the objective to which he is bound.

He is the mediator who divulges the secrets of the deep reaches of celestial space and although no mortal eye has seen these secret objects, he proves with his photograph plate, that they do exist. We all have been taught of the sun and the planets, of their action, which brings our seasons, of variations of the length of days and nights, but what of the objects from the horizon to the zenith, the out-post of our solar system?

Some say "one world at a time" but others like those who desire to know something beyond the confines of their daily walks, so is their desire to obtain the results of modern investigation of celestial objects.

The fragmentary structure of the great ring of faint light cloud, which arches the heavens at certain times of the year, is the parent system of our own solar system, it is the Milky-way or Galaxy. To it belong all the scattered stars which are visible to the naked eye. These stars separated from it by vast distances and although our nearest neighbor is 4 1/2 light years away from us, we belong to the galactic system, or Milky-way.

Of the individual stars which the eye can separate one from another, there are about 6,200 and these only extend to the 6th or 7th magnitude. If we were favorably placed with unobscured vision from the horizon to the zenith, we would see only half of the 6,200 stars in the celestial hemisphere.

The distance from the sun to our earth is 1 astronomical unit (93,000,000 miles). To Neptune the most distant planet in our solar system, it is 30 astronomical units from the sun, to Alpha Centauri, 275,000 astronomical units usually called the nearest fixed star but really a faint star close by it is nearer.

According to Kapteyn's new catalogue, all of the 6,200 stars visible to the unaided eye are within 100 light years from us (the distance light travels in 100 years at 186,000 miles per second) and within a zone of 10 light years, there should be only 6 stars, but only 4 are known, these are Alpha Centauri, Sirius which is the brightest star in the heavens, Barnard's "runaway star" and Lalande, No. 21,185, the 7th magnitude star.

Of the 6,200 stars nearer than 100 light years, only 1-8 or 790 may be expected to exceed the sun in brightness (distances not considered). About 100 of these will be 10 times as bright as the sun or more and only 5 or 6 exceed 100 times the sun's brightness.

Only 1 star in 50,000 on an average of the telescopic stars is 1000 times as bright as the sun. Of the 6,200 stars, 5,410 are fainter than the sun, about 3,400 of these will give out less than 1-10 as much light as the sun.

"Cold in the Head"

is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds in the head" will find that the use of HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will build up the system, cleanse the blood and render them less liable to colds. Repeated attacks of Acute Catarrh may lead to Chronic Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions. All druggists. Circulars free.

LAND OF DREAMS

Oh, haunts of my childhood,
Oh, land of my dreams,
Oh, mountains, and rivers, and lakes!
No skies ever dearer,
No sunsets so bright,
No moonlight reflections so rare!
No song birds so fitting,
And everywhere the same old melody,
As in our valley so fair!

Oh, rivers so smiling,
In springtime swift rushing,
In each beauty I ever can see.
I love your sweet cascade,
I love your loud roaring,
Both music forever to me.

Oh, flowers of cardinal,
Oh, lilies, so white,
Oh, alders that droop o'er the brink!
Your fragrance so heavenly,
Your colors, and shades,
My senses still thrill with delight.

Oh, homelands! Oh, loved ones!
Dear home of my loved ones,
Than all lands the world holds beside.
Dear haunts of my childhood,
Dear home of my loved ones,
My heart aches to come unto thee!

Mrs. Hall (Isn't looking for a husband) but she would like a man to do some of the hard farm work for her if she could find one that could work and not expect to (boss the job.) Nowadays if a man works only (i. e. a number of them) they expect to boss the job and do the work as they like and let their employers knuckle too and do about all the work. We think most everybody who hires help are capable of doing the bossing and expect their work done to their liking. Men pay their cash to help for work, but the usually the hired man who gets by with the least work for his money.

Father Head seems to be about the only member of his family that is able to present to get out and hustle and he is far from enjoying good health, but it takes the old standard to get there. They have the real old New England get up and get to them. Lots of younger people would faint by the wayside to do half the work some of the older ones perform daily and still they claim this generation is stronger than their forefathers were but in some ways they may appear so but they lack the stamina (the real back bone and will or power to endure) of the old settlers. There are so many modern improvements now days that everybody seems to think that they can get by with very little hard work (some may) but somebody has to knuckle to it and get busy or lots would starve to death.

Norway and Vicinity
By George C. Leavitt

Although living in sight of the White Mountains all my life a trip there always seemed difficult to take and expensive. Over the past week end I went on a tramp over Mount Washington that was inexpensive and although taking but parts of three days included some of the most interesting points in the mountains and may give an idea to others who have not known how to go about it.

I took the morning train to Gorham arriving about 11 o'clock. Around the corner on the main street of Gorham is the U. S. government forest reservation office where a map of the mountain, region was given me for the asking.

From Gorham I started to walk to Tuckerman's Ravine and after about a mile was given a ride by a Boston tourist as far as the Glen House, about eight miles. This lift saved about half a day's travel. From the Glen House I walked about two miles to the foot of the Ravine and left my pack and then went on to Glen Ellis Falls about two miles farther on.

There is some beautiful scenery on that part of the trip including Mount Washington with the Boot Spur and Lion Head. That with the Falls makes it well worth taking without going any further. At the foot of Tuckerman's Ravine is a group of cabins of the Appalachian Mountain club where a tramp, man or woman, can be put over night at nominal rates.

Shortest Way to the Summit
The tramp up Tuckerman's Ravine presents some wonderful mountain scenery; is dangerous enough to be interesting; and is the shortest way to the summit of Mount Washington. About fifteen minutes walk up is the Crystal Cascades, very beautiful now as there is so much water. Further up is the Hermit's lake surrounded by the mountains and above that under the wall at the head of the ravine the Snow Arête. The latter is where water melted the snow that packed the ravine during the winter leaving an arch. At present there is no arch but several tons of snow on each side of the stream.

It is a steady climb up to that point but not upward over the head wall of the ravine to the flat shoulder of the mountain. At the top there is an impressive view over the Gulf of the ravine and the jagged top of the Boot Spur.

It was late in the afternoon so I was forced to hurry to the summit. Hurrying was rather slow for a tramp. The summit is covered with jagged rocks and slabs of rock piled in all directions. It was a hard pull and the cloud bank began to set in shutting off all view.

Over an hour's climb including a long rest took me to the Summit House. It came as a surprise, looming through the cloud before I had any idea it was near.

Knickerbockers is the Style
The Summit House is a comfortably fitted hotel. Rates for rooms vary but those who wish can have a bunk in the old stone Tip House for $1.00. One half the house is for women and the other for men. The beds are comfortable. Meals are expensive but not so high considering the fact that everything has to be hauled to the top.

My breakfast including oatmeal, coffee, rolls and two eggs cost $1.05.

The next morning everyone was routed out to see the usual sunrise. It was rather cloudy and not up to the best.

Women making the mountain trip should wear knickerbockers and a red necktie. That seemed to be the prevailing fashion and there were a number of fair tramps on the summit. The majority went up by the carriage road where a toll of sixteen cents, I believe, is charged both up and down.

The next days trip was down the mountain towards Tuckerman's Ravine as far as the head wall of the ravine and across by the Lakes of the Clouds where there is another of the Appalachian Mountain huts where travellers are put up at only a moderate charge. The lakes are two small bodies of water, 100 feet or so long, fed by cloud water.

Down the Crawford Trail
The old Crawford Trail was followed down. It leads over Mount Monks, Mount Franklin, Mount Pleasant and Mount Clinton by easy grades, in places requiring hard work as coming up the ravine. There are some fine views off the ridges. In one place the trail could be seen going up the cog railway to the summit and a big summer hotel could be seen far below.

The trail or better path is as easy to follow as the average country road, in doubtful places there being signs saying "path" and at intersections full directions are given.

I took a detour over the top and down the side of Mount Clinton landing in a swampy place by the Crawford trail, found a path back to the Crawford trail through the dripping woods in the hard rain.

The Crawford Trail ends at the Crawford House at the opening of Crawford notch. The trail is eight and a half miles long.

At the Crawford house I asked if they put up tramps as I was soaked and wanted to get dried out. A room over the garage at $5.00 a day was the best, or poorest, they had to offer so I kept on.

I started off through the notch for the Willey House past Saco Lake, the source of Saco River. About half a mile from the hotel, a man from Pawtucket Rhode Island, picked me up and carried me as far as Bridgton, Maine. I found there were accommodations except tents at the Willey house although some log cabins are being put up. Meals are served there.

If Bridgton is as patriotic as it is noisy on the Fourth it must have taken from the Liberty Loan in the war. Across and the bell was kept ringing from 12 until about 4 o'clock.

Given Another Lift
There is no public conveyance to Norway from Bridgton except by way of Portland, so I started out to walk. About two miles beyond the town I got a lift to the head of Highland Lake. I walked there I walked to about a mile beyond Harrison. One of Ripley and Fletcher's garage men picked me up and carried me to Norway.

Every one might not be so fortunate about being given a lift to the road but a lone tramp is pretty sure to be given some rides. The total expense of the trip was $7.98 including souvenir book and $3.00 for meals and lodging at the Cumberland House.

It does not pay to go too heavily laden as it takes the joy out of tramping and makes it hard work. I carried a light emergency lunch, peanuts, chocolate, crackers, cheese and doughnuts, a blanket so if I got caught out over night, a camera and a field glass. One should take an extra pair of socks.

Waseco Cottage Doing Business

Frank J. McCarthy has gone a long way toward improving a spot on the lake shore drive. A modern tea room, known as the Waseco Cottage, with flower beds, rustic effects, winding paths, seats and benches are some of the improvements of the past few weeks on a lot hardly attracting a passing notice.

The cottage adjoins the white birch grown on a point of land jutting into the lake, known locally as Leavitt's Grove. A little over a mile from Norway village, a short distance from Norway Lake village, and on the highway to large summer colonies in Harrison, Lovell and Bridgton, the spot has even now proved a lucky selection.

The cottage has three rooms. A kitchenette, 7x10, is equipped with conveniences for quick service. No cooking is done here for all food is prepared by Mrs. Anna Sapon and Mrs. McCarthy in the "kitchen" at the back where also have personal oversight of the dining room. The store, 10x15, carries a large stock of soft drinks, ice cream in four flavors, tourist's dinner sets, paper towels, cigars, etc. A dining room 14x41, arranged for a regular course dinner if desired, but more usually for the post card views, camping scenes, Indian handicraft and a collection of china plates are said to be a hundred and fifty years old. Chairs and a couch are there when a rest room is needed. Forty guests can be served at one time in this room.

Last but not least about the cottage are the broad verandas, 8x46 feet, all screened and free from insects. Chairs and tables are there where light refreshments can be served. A desk with writing materials, and a typewriter is there. The lake view is one of all patients is unsurpassed and refreshing breezes from the "big pond" make the verandas ideal in hot weather.

Several two hundred and fifty candle power gas lights brilliantly illuminate the verandas at night. The place is one of the bright spots on the lake shore when the gloom of night settles over the large family camping along the shores of this well known lake. The cottage furnishes spring water, and has telephone connections.

The sanitary conditions are well high perfect. All refuse is burned and two chemical closets are in a secluded spot on the height of land across the edge of the highway for a parking spot, many of the boulders are to form a breakwater in front of Leavitt Grove. A floating wharf is being launched and boating parties can easily land within a short time.

One of the interesting things is a register for guests kept in the dining room. Although the tourist season is young, parties giving addresses in Massachusetts, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and other states are on record.

FROZEN SWEETS FOR HOT DAYS

Cumberland Ginger Pudding—Sweeten one pint of thick cream with one-third cup of powdered sugar and whip very stiff. Add slowly the ginger syrup drained from preserved ginger, one tablespoon of lemon juice and one egg white. Freeze, and when partly frozen, add one-half cup of the drained ginger chopped fine.

The Carlton Frozen Peaches—Remove the stones from one quart of fine ripe peaches, taking care to save any of the juice which comes from them. Cut the stones, take out the kernels, and tie the loosely in a piece of muslin. Put a pint of cold water in a saucepan with one and a half pounds of loaf-sugar, bring it to a boil and boil for 10 minutes. Pour the syrup into a basin containing the peaches. Crush the kernels up inside the bag. Lay in with the peaches and cover the basin with a cloth. When the syrup is quite cold add the strained juice of a lemon.

After moving the bag containing the kernels strain the mixture. This should be served in tall crystal glasses and on a dainty plate.

Cocoanut Charlotte—A delicious dessert is this: Beat the whites of three eggs, a pinch of salt and half a cup of pulverized sugar. Scald one quart of cream in a double boiler and add the beaten and sweetened whites, and the milk from one coconut, with six drops of rose extract. Freeze. Line charlotte russe cases, which are sold at all favor stores, with white sponge cake. Fill in the center with the frozen mixture, scatter grated cocoanut over the white and stick a marshmallow cherry on the top for a garnish.

Raspberry Ice—The best raspberry ice is the easiest to make. It calls for one quart of the berries. Extract the juice and add one pint of granulated sugar, dissolved in the juice. Add the juice of one good sized lemon and half a pint of water. Freeze in the usual manner. The addition of a beaten egg white or a tablespoon of granulated gelatin soaked in cold water adds somewhat to the smoothness and flavor of the ice.

Cherry Punch—When cherries are good, try cherry punch, made in this way: Dissolve a cup of water and a pound of sugar over the fire, add the juice of an orange and boil five minutes. Remove from the fire and strain. Add a pint of cherry juice, the juice of two oranges and one lemon; cool and freeze. Serve in glasses and garnish with two or three whole, pitted cherries on top of each glass.

Raspberry Sherbet—Raspberry sherbet can be made with a quart of water and a pint of sugar boiled together for ten minutes. To this add a teaspoon of granulated gelatin that has been soaked in a little cold water and strain. When it is cold, add a pint of strawberry juice and the juice of two lemons. Freeze very hard.

A variation of the above recipe is to make the raspberry sherbet as described, and to fill in the center of the sherbet with a custard made by mixing a special cream, sweetened and flavored.

VITAL RELATION OF TREES TO HUMANITY

Now I want to tell you the story of the tree as a living thing, because the average person does not realize that the tree is alive, a real living breathing organism. Most folks, unfortunately, look upon the tree as more or less an accident on the face of the earth, a thing that just happens to be and may happen to be useful at times, and we learn to love trees and few learn the great secret of a tree's life. The tree actually breathes. It has a circulation. It has powers of digestion and assimilation. It has sexual processes just as real and beautiful as in any other form of life.

The tree breathes through its leaves chiefly. There are myriads of openings on the underside of the leaf and thru those tiny openings that are visible only under the microscope, the air is taken in and separated into its parts. The carbon dioxide is extracted and used in the building process. The oxygen is thrown off for the benefit of man and all animal life. The carbon is used to unite with the mineral elements that have been brought up from the soil to become a part of the food. Oxygen and breathing process does not follow the action of a bellows as in the human lungs, but it is just as real breathing as there is in any other form of life.

The tree has a very real circulation. Way down under the soil the little hair roots draw up the moisture and in that moisture are the food elements in solution. The crude sap travels from these little hair roots into the larger roots and finally into the trunk and on up into the large branches and leaves there to the twigs and out to the leaves.

If you can imagine yourself looking at the cross section of a tree, the top of a stump that has been cut off, you will see in the center the pith and around that the successive layers of wood, very clearly marked, and each layer represents a year's growth. I heard my good old father describe a short time ago, a trip he had made into Pennsylvania where he watched the lumbermen prepare to lay to earth a giant pine. They cut away and saved away until nearly all was ready and the great monarch started slowly as if in painful reluctance. Then it toppled over and crashed to the earth with a heavy sickening thud, followed by a few moments of dead silence. They started at the center and counted the rings on up to one hundred and stuck a knife in, and then counted up to two hundred and stuck another knife in, and then counted fifty-nine more. Two hundred and fifty-nine years it took God Almighty to make that tree and only a few minutes for man to destroy it.

In the center, the cells of the tree are practically dormant. All of those cells in their time served as sap carriers or sapwood, but as nature added year by year a new layer on the outside, these central cells ceased to perform the function of sap carriers and became practically dormant, serving only the purpose of structural support. So you find your eye travelling outward from the center toward the bark, inside of which the sap carriers are growing and the active sapwood where the sap travels from the roots all the way to the leaves. Just outside of this sapwood and beneath the bark is the so-called cambium layer where all the growth takes place. Outside of everything else is the bark which protects the living tree.

Now then, this sapwood having carried the sap up to the leaves, we find there a most wonderful thing, a more magnificent factory than man ever conceived, a more remarkable creative thing than man ever dreamed of. In the leaf, under the influence of the sunlight, this crude food material is digested and prepared for the use of the tree and then in this digested form it travels downward in the inner cells of the bark all the way to these small little roots from whence it comes building as it flows all the way on the downward course.

In order that you may understand the importance of water, let me say that scientists have calculated that a tree of average size in the course of a single growing season throws in the air 500 barrels of water by the process called transpiration. That water must come from somewhere. It is taken up by the roots and is just as vital to the life of the tree as water is to any other form of life.

Now I want to tell you a little story that illustrates one of the most monumental things in the world of living things. Several months ago, I read in the New York Times a story which had been written by one of their correspondents from the famine stricken of Russia. There was something in that story which struck me very deeply. It was of a little child lay starving. It was on a couch covered with a quilt and it looked as though a large pillow were under the quilt. The correspondent looked at the child with inquiring eyes and the mother turned his purpose. She pulled back the quilt and disclosed a horribly misshapen body. Its little belly was so distended that it had the appearance of a kewpie. Its little arms and legs were emaciated. Then the mother told sadly how the terrible pangs of hunger had driven them so far that they had given this little child a blue clay, called cer, it sticks to the teeth and sticks to the walls of the stomach, but there it lodges. It still for the time being the intense craving of hunger, but there is no power in the human system to throw it off. Then the worms start to work in the little bowels and soon death comes.

I tell you that to illustrate the profound fact that man can not live on mineral elements. The only things from the mineral world that we can take into the human system and assimilate are salts and a small amount of iron. Everything else must come to man in a predigested form made so by the leaves. The leaf not of the tree alone but of all vegetation, is the one and only connecting link between the organic and inorganic worlds, and without the leaves all life must perish. Everything you eat, everything you wear is made in the leaf, directly or indirectly. The meat that you eat comes from the grains and the grasses manufactured in the leaf, the only thing capable of transforming mineral elements into available food material for all forms of life. I say that in order to emphasize the utter dependence of man on the leaves of vegetation. And this it appears that the great God who created the world and the life that inhabits it, made of the lowly leaf the most wonderful and important instrumentality of life.

Now then the tree breathes, it has its circulation, it has its digestion. I have tried to tell you in a simple way how this crude food material takes up to the leaf and combined in that most wonderful factory with the carbon from the air under the marvelous influence of the sunlight and transformed into available food material. Perhaps you may have noticed the healing process in the tree. It always takes place on the downward edge of the old live bark. You might find a wound of any dimensions with a strip of bark projecting down from the top and that strip will almost invariably live; but if that strip should project up from the bottom, it will surely die because the food material can not travel upward—all growth and all healing takes place on the downward flow.

I wonder if you had realized that the tree lives in response to the same fundamental law of reproduction as all other forms of life. The two elemental principles that run through all life are self preservation and reproduction. The tree follows both and governed by both. It has as wonderful and as interesting and as beautiful sex processes as any other living thing. The male and female exist as positive factors. Sometimes the male and female are found in the same flower. Sometimes they exist in different flowers on the same tree. Sometimes you find a tree whose flowers are all male or all female. The male parts create the pollen which is carried largely by the wind to the female organs where conception takes place and the continuity of life is made possible. As a result of this sex relation the little seeds are born and are protected by the fruit or shell covering in which they occur. In the apple, you have the little seed; in the peach, the stone in the oak the acorn; in the nut, you have the nut. And this we see that in all the fundamental things, life exists in the tree just as truly as it does in man himself. It is true that the tree has no intelligence. It has no nervous system and it lacks the power of locomotion, but in every other elemental thing, it is just as truly alive as you and I.

Right here I would like to take the opportunity to condemn the practice of beheading trees. Some folks call it pollarding. It is properly called tree butchery. God put the tops on trees for a purpose. You must have the leaves or there can be no circulation. When you cut the top out of a tree, nature in her desperate effort to live, forces out the latent buds on the side of the stub. These latent buds are forced into abnormal growth, so that you get a bushy and apparently vigorous top that deceives many people.

But just as sure as fate, unless this cutting back is done by someone with more skill and knowledge than the average tree-patcher possesses and the wounds carefully treated for a period of time, decay will start to work in the exposed and lifeless stub and eat its way down through the limbs and trunk of the tree. Such a tree is doomed to premature death.

Decay is the great called fungus. It is a low form of vegetable life, a parasite, and lives by tearing down some other form of life. It is growing in every decaying tree; and at a certain season of the year, it sends its fruiting bodies out to the surface of the world, the trunk. You can see these fruiting bodies clearly on diseased trees. They look something like toadstools. They give off myriads of microscopic spores that float through the air. Some of them find lodgment on the exposed wood cells, in an open wound and start to grow. They send out little thread-like tentacles, called mycelium, that travel from cell to cell and break them down—live on them. This disease, once started, never stops unless arrested by human skill.

The only time when it is excusable to behead a tree is when that tree is doomed anyway and you want to make the cripple look as good as possible as long as it will last. Ordinarily, I should brand the practice as criminal.

Some four hundred years ago there came to the Eastern shores of this country the first of the pilgrims and they beheld a glorious picture, a land covered with a wealth of wonderful trees that it had taken centuries to produce. Capt. John Smith who landed in Virginia, said back word to the mother country that he had discovered a land of inexhaustible fertility, and now you can go into the state of Virginia and buy thousands of acres for almost a song. The land is worn out, exhausted of its fertility.

What has happened to this great area of verdant beauty? In the New England states when the Pilgrims set foot on that shore it was a land clothed with the splendor of magnificent trees. Today three-fourths of the forest area is gone. Half of the remaining area is in the state of Maine and a very large portion of that is in the pulp wood varieties. New England was a great exporter of lumber not so many years ago.

Today New England that was once richly endowed with timber has so far depleted her resources that she is importing this part of her consumption and will import more and more as time goes on.

Then, the tide moved to New York which became, perhaps fifty years ago, the greatest producer of timber in the Union. Oh, then she was the great producer of trees, a wealth that was deemed inexhaustible, and yet today in only half a century, their production has shrunk so far that it amounts to only ten percent of their consumption. Their annual consumption is three hundred board feet per capita and their production only thirty board feet.

Next came Pennsylvania, Penna's Woods, named because of the wonderful covering of trees that graced its hills and valleys. Today the production in the State of Pennsylvania is only twenty percent of its consumption, less than enough for the Pittsburgh District alone. But that is not all of the sad story that has happened in Pennsylvania. If any of you have taken a daylight ride across the Alleghenies I assume that you have seen the things that greeted my eye and almost struck horror to my heart—miles and miles of desolate waste, the trees gone, swept away, and barren land remaining.

As the wasteful methods of the lumberman were used, the branches and all the debris were left. Fires were started and these fires swept over the remaining vegetation and wiped it out. Those trees and all the things which grew on the hillsides provided a network of roots that served as anchors to hold in place the fertile soil. As the rain came down it settled into the loose porous soil, and found its way into the subsoil, and from there through the underground channels to the springs. Those springs fed the little streams and they in turn fed the rivers. But with the trees gone and the lands bare, the water had no hold to hold the rain in check, so that nothing is possible except alternating floods and droughts. The fertile soil is washed away on miles and miles of the hillsides of Pennsylvania, the fertile soil that it took nature hundreds of years to build up. The same thing has happened and is happening in many other sections of the country. And I want to say to you that this question of forest devastation has a direct and vital bearing on your water supply.

So it comes home to us a most vital problem—a question that the Nation must face. We will face it whether we wish to or not. We will face it with a solution or we will face it with a catastrophe. I am happy to say that the best experts are agreed that it is not too late provided two great things are done and done soon. First, that the terrible wastefulness that is now in vogue by lumbermen shall be stopped and kept under control. Second, that reforestation be started on a large National scale. The first is to conserve the lumber supply until new trees can be grown, and it is well to remember that a tree cannot be grown to commercial size in much less than fifty to a hundred years or more. So for our own sakes and for the sake of our children and their children, we have got to face the problem if we want lumber, yes, if we want all of the other things that are inseparably interwoven with what we call civilization.

For those who love sport, who delight to shoulder a gun or go forth with a rod into God's great out-of-doors, this question holds unusual importance. If there are no forests there can be mighty little game. If the streams dry up even for part of the season, the water supply is seriously impaired, there will be few fish to tempt the ardent angler. Proper measures of conservation, that will protect the larger interest of the country, will likewise protect the sportsman's pleasure.

Most of you have heard frequently of the famines in China. The statistics show that they have one crop in seven years. The facts also show that China once had a wonderful covering of trees. The same old story shows that the wealth of timber in China was cut away, laid low over thousands and thousands of miles and then the land was burned over. They show also that the fertile soil has been washed down from the hillsides into the rivers, and the tops on trees for a vast area of that land cannot possibly grow vegetation. And I say to you that China has become and will remain for a long time to come, a land of perpetual famine, because she has destroyed the very source of her large measure by destroying her forests. She has brought on herself inevitable and terrible results.

"THE IDEAL GIRL"

As seen by a high school boy; what do men admire most in girls? Recently at Wellington, Kansas, the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. held an enlightening interchange of confidences. Among the precepts laid down by a high school boy from a paper entitled "The Ideal Girl" are the following:

1. Do not flirt. It is useless and has no definite aim. You do not necessarily have to be a sissy, so to speak, or to be stiff.

2. Be at ease in company. The ideal girl is the same girl in public as in the eyes of a brother or sister.

3. Don't tell all your secrets to your girl chum.

4. Do not offend a girl friend because of jealousy.

5. Do not worry about having good clothes. Look neat and clean in what you can afford.

6. Do not try to be what you are not—but be the same girl all the time.

HOW TRAMP CHANCED TO INVENT BLANKET

Blankets for various purposes are so common and so familiar that the average person probably supposes they have "always been," or at least that they have been used as long as men have worn clothes and slept in beds. For ages there have been bed coverings and fabrics for other purposes for which blankets are now used, but prior to the year 1340 there were no blankets and no one had ever heard of such a thing.

In that year an Englishman named Thomas Blanket went to the wall. His property—even the house he lived in—was sold to satisfy creditors. Wandering about, homeless and penniless, he came one cold winter night to a barn. As there was no place else to go, he decided to spend the night there. Luckily he found lying in the building a piece of rough unfinished cloth which he spread over himself when he lay down in the straw to sleep. This kept him so warm and comfortable that it occurred to him that making and selling bed coverings of such material would prove a profitable business enterprise. According to the Pathfinder Blanket acted on this idea by obtaining some loosely woven cloth with a nap, which he put into oblong pieces and sold as "blankets" named after himself.

For several hundred years blankets were made exclusively of wool, but as cotton became more plentiful and consequently cheaper, it was wisely used as a substitute for wool. Woolen blankets are warmer and usually wear better than cotton ones, but many prefer cotton because it is cheaper, more easily washed and is soft and scratches.

SUGGESTIONS

For the Absent-Minded Woman
When you are baking set the alarm clock to remind you when to go turn off the oven.

Washing Sieves
Never wash a sieve with soap; ammonia, with the aid of a brush, will clean it in less time.

When Preparing Oranges
Soak an orange in boiling water for five minutes before peeling; the white lining will then come off with the skin.

During Housecleaning
When housecleaning the glass cabinet, place a folded Turkish towel in the bottom of the cupboard and you will save many chips on your best glassware and china.

Arranging Flowers
If when placing flowers in a vase you find some stiff stems that will not go in the position desired, massage them gently for a few minutes. This will make them remain as placed.

Temporary Plumbing
Should a leakage of gas be noticed at a time when it is impossible to get a plumber, common yellow soap applied to the place where the gas is escaping will stop the leak until a plumber makes repairs.

TO DEVELOP THE FEEBLE MINDED.
Mothers with feeble minded children, teachers of special classes will be given an opportunity at the coming meeting of the N. E. A., July 3-8 to learn about modern methods of training the mentally backward.

Many parents have terribly backward children. They will be taught how to prevent them from becoming feeble-minded. Many school teachers have feeble-minded children in their classes. They need to know how to train them to speak.

At the N. E. A. meeting in Boston, the National Society for the Study and Correction of Speech Disorder, will present in one afternoon, methods of curing speech of the feeble-minded. These methods are now spread out through the west. New England is ten years behind in its education of the feeble-minded.

Every mentally backward child deserves the opportunity of having all the kinds of education possible. The development of the speech of the feeble-minded is by far the wisest and finest way to educate the feeble-minded out, out of their feeble-mindedness. All these meetings are free to mothers and teachers. They may find the place of meeting by consulting the N. E. A. Program; or by writing for the final program of the meeting of the National Society for the Study and Correction of Speech Disorder, which will be sent by the Normal School for Speech Education, 110 Bay State Road, Boston. A postal card will secure the program.

BRYANT'S POND

BASEBALL

Woodstock A. C. defeated Locke's Mills at Bryant Pond, Saturday, 8-2. The score was knotted at two-all until the seventh inning, when Woodstock let loose and scored five runs. Clifford was combined for thirteen hits, three of which were for extra bases, but W. A. C. threw away several runs by reckless work on bases. Chase forced the first three batters to dribble weakly to the infield. At the beginning of the second inning he was replaced by Morse, who held his opponents to two hits while eight of them were fanning. W. A. C. showed good team work on the defensive, while H. Perham starred for the visitors.

LOCOMOTIVE OF BUSINESS

Sometimes you hear a merchant say: "Yes, advertising is all right for some people, but what good would it do me? Everybody knows where I do business and what I carry. There's no need for me to advertise." Is there anybody really situated thus? One would think that a nationally advertised product, which has become a household word, could reduce its advertising expenditure after a while but experience has shown that it cannot and continue its record of sales. It only takes a very little time for people to forget. The world is moving at a fast pace these days. Think of the patent medicines which once flourished and were known by name, at least to everybody. Where are they now, most of them? William Wrigley, Jr., the great chewing gum magnate put this idea pretty effectively recently. He was talking to a smoking compartment audience and was telling how much a year he alone people spend for advertising. "But, Mr. Wrigley," said one, "you've spent millions of dollars and created a splendid demand now; everybody talks about and chews Spearmint. Your demand is steady and growing. Isn't it a waste to continue spending so many hundred thousand dollars a year in publicity?" The Spearmint King thought a moment, and then replied: "My friend, if I were to stop advertising it would be just like taking the engine off this train. It would slow down and after a little while stop. Advertising is the locomotive of business and if you don't have it, business comes to a stop."

We Now Have 2 Bull Calves for Sale

Both are sired by our herd sire, King Hengewald Alcantia, who headed our exhibit of Holsteins at the fairs last year. These Calves are growthy and nicely marked, about one-half white. They are about 2 months old and have the type one should expect from their parents.

The dams are 3-4 sisters, one 6 yr. old recently gave under official test 576.5 lbs. of milk and 25.3 lbs. of butter in seven days, giving almost 91 lbs. of milk (45 quarts) her best day. Her calf is priced at $200.00. The other cow gave 581.2 lbs. milk and 24.1 lbs. butter in seven days and gave 84.9 lbs. (42 quarts) milk her best day. Her calf priced at $150.00. Registration and pedigree papers with calf.

Both of these bulls have 29 sisters admitted to advanced registry: more are to be heard from. The day is now past when a breeder buys a bull calf or a herd sire solely because of outstanding showing qualities or of big production. He now desires a sire from individuals who combine quality with production. These calves have size, type, quality and will not only improve your herd, but will make individuals of which you may be proud.

Herd free of tuberculosis and under State and Federal supervision. These calves priced for immediate sale. Further advertising will make them cost more. They are guaranteed to be right in every particular and warranted to be breeders. They will be delivered free within sixty miles or will be crated and put aboard the train at Fryeburg at prices named.

The dams and calves are at our farm and we welcome an inspection. We urge you to make a reservation either by phone or wire. Terms to responsible parties.

The Wentworth Poultry Fountain

We have recently perfected and are now offering a new fountain or watering system known as THE WENTWORTH POULTRY FOUNTAIN. It has been developed with the idea of lessening the spread of diseases through the drinking of contaminated or impure water. The fountain or main body of water is entirely separate maintained at any predetermined depth in the drinking vessel. It will thus be seen that it is impossible for the main body of water in the drinking vessel. The object, therefore, of the fountain is to automatically supply fresh pure water as required by the birds, and its advantages are as follows:

FIRST—The Drinking Vessel, being separate from the main body of water, may be rinsed or disinfected at will without interfering with the fountain or main water supply.

SECOND—There are no float valves, air tight caps, or anything of the sort to get out of order. Its construction is simple; its operation is positive and pleasing.

THIRD—It is durable—will last a lifetime, and is inexpensive.

TAXATION AND HIGH COST OF LIVING

Porter J. McCumber who is serving his 24th year as a member of the U. S. Senate from North Dakota, was beaten last week in the primaries by a radical of the non-partisan League, Lyman J. Frost for nomination. Senator McCumber is chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate and one of the leaders in framing the present tariff. It is regrettable that a man like McCumber, "re-elected" out of the governorship in that state should be selected for Senator for he will be a follower of Senator La Follette. The Senate is a poor place for such men, but McCumber has been pressed consideration of the "bonuses" bill, saying on one occasion, "To hell with the measures for paying out the boys have the money." This shows how much of a statesman he really is. He richly deserves the rebuke he has received. There are others who deserve to be "stepped on."—News Item and Comment.

A Boston Daily says while not so apparent as in Indiana, Iowa and Pennsylvania, there is some "popular uneasiness" in Maine. There is beyond a doubt and whether it can be kept down remains to be seen. We doubt it however very much. The people don't submit to being "yarded" as they once did. But by the way "uneasiness" is a very expressive term. It means a big lot. It may be well for some candidates to watch its growth.—Comment.

Melons and cantaloup in Colorado are going to rot by the millions. Producers want to keep prices up even by sacrificing a large part of the crop. That is on a par with the fish dealers who when the market happens to be overstocked throw away large quantities to keep up the price instead of allowing the consumer occasionally to get the benefit of an overproduction. They have got it down fine, but if the people would band together and refuse to eat any fish for a period it would bring them to their knees. People can't accomplish much unless they are willing to forego some luxuries and make some sacrifices.

There isn't a monopoly in the country but might be broken up.—Comment.

The U. S. Government has taken the coal situation in hand and called a conference of the representatives of the mine workers and operators. Herbert C. Hoover has been selected by the Administration with the Secretary of Labor to effect some settlement between them. We have no faith in there being any arrangement whereby the price of coal will be brought down to normal figures. It was stated from Washington that the government would not allow a coal famine. It ought to go farther. It should not allow war prices in times of peace, nor the people to be forever robbed and skinned. When is the time coming that normal conditions which were promised will prevail.—News and Comment.

Conditions must change. They are unbearable. It's nearly four years since the great World War ended. What has really been done to restore the country to normal conditions? Nothing of worth. It is idle to look to the politicians. The situation is too much for them. They are not capable of handling it. A conference of the business interests of the country should have been held soon after the war and normal prices established. It's not too late now.—Comment.

SALES OF FARM PROPERTY

Unusually heavy sales of farm properties are reported this spring by leading dealers in that kind of estate. Several reasons are given for this increase in business, but the most notable is an extraordinary change that has taken place within the farm business itself. Formerly there were a few transfers of farm property in the spring after the season had become too late to do any spring planting. Men who wanted farms would not buy them because they could not get their crops started in time to provide themselves with either a winter's supply for themselves and their families or assure themselves an income from their products in the harvesting season. These handicaps have been overcome by including growing crops with farm properties sold in the spring and summer, and harvested crops with farms sold in the winter. The result has been that this year the sales for May have exceeded those of any other May.

DAMAGED BY RAIN

Damage in excess of $25,000 was sustained from the heavy downpour of rain on June 25th at Mexico and in Rumford, it was estimated. Austin Brook swelled to the proportions of a river and swept down through the center of the village at Mexico. Trees were uprooted and a huge boulder was picked up and thrown onto adjacent property. Sections of three highways were destroyed and two other roads were badly inundated. Crops and gardens were destroyed by destroyed by the water which was reported to have been 20 yards wide and from 18 to 25 feet deep. Damage was caused by lightning in Rumford and at Virginia. It was learned from the Power dam, a few miles from Rumford that the water was within a few inches from the top of the big structure. A large quantity of water may have poured over Rumford if the precipitation had continued.

PAY AS YOU GO

"Pay as you go or don't go." Some people have quite a knack of getting things on tick. It is far better to pay as one goes. Sometimes it is not convenient to pay cash down but the habit of running on debt becomes like a chronic disease and it is far better to pay as one goes. "Out of debt, out of danger" is a good slogan to adopt but when a man works out and he fails to secure his pay when his work is done he must either get trusted or get hungry; therefore every one hiring help should hand him his wages when his day's work is done. Many (and especially those who have plenty of ready cash) are thoughtless along this line but it causes lots of suffering sometimes and this habit of neglecting to hand a man his pay should be corrected.

We have been there and have many times gone home hungry when we have labored hard and earned money to buy food with but had to go home without it because our employer did not pay us and we did not like to ask for our pay. Most people who work out are dependent on their day's pay and should have it and not be obliged to ask for it.—News and Critic.

Hope chests are a modern invention and are getting to be quite the go with the girls that expect soon to need the things the chest contains.

Dresser School Reunion

The Dresser School Reunion was held at that place Saturday, June 24. Owing to circumstances, the attendance was not so large as last year and we missed several faces. Those who were there enjoyed the day to the limit. After the morning was spent in greeting both old and new faces, the noon dinner was served from the beautifully spread tables in the pretty pine grove nearby. The afternoon was taken up with a fine program as follows:

After the program, speeches were called for. Mrs. W. I. Becker responded and in a few words expressed the feeling of all who said how much she had enjoyed it all and thanked her teacher, Nina Briggs, for the work she had done for her work in the school, also for the help she gave to Round Mountain Grange on children's day. Mrs. Becker said that she could not be there last year, but assured them that she should be with them the next year if possible. Mrs. Becker told a humorous bear story told him when a boy by his father, the late George Becker, and some incidents of his school days. He spoke of some former teachers and especially of the good work done one winter among the larger boys, by the late Dr. John Twaddle.

Adjourned until another year. While gathered in the school yard saying goodbye, someone found a cart in the bushes and one "young" boy wanted a ride as boys will and another agreed to be horse. They began to rear and the rider was scared but being "young and nimble" turned a back somersault and landed safely on the ground. In the meantime a camera was produced and pictures of the team were secured. A day to be always remembered and one to be looked forward to as the years come and go.

BUILT BETTER than Cars that Cost More

A careful analysis of the construction and complete equipment of the Light Six will convince you that it has no duplicate in value in the light car class.

For instance, the machining of the crankshaft and connecting rods on all surfaces is a manufacturing practice that is found only on costlier cars.

This particular operation is mainly responsible for the fine balance of the Light-Six motor and its remarkable freedom from vibration at all speeds. It also has an important bearing on the wearing quality of the car and on its long-lived dependable service.

The exceptional values in the Light-Six are possible because practically every part that goes into the car is manufactured complete in the most modern plant in the world. Parts-makers' profits are practically eliminated. Important saving through better methods and bigger volume permit greater value to the buyer.

From the standpoint of shrewd investment you should find out why the Light-Six offers you so much more for your money in performance, service and economy.

SOUTH WATERFORD

William Kingman

This community was saddened to hear that William Kingman had dropped dead on the way to his work on the morning of June 13th. Mr. Kingman was fifty-nine years old and was born on a farm half a mile above Waterford Flat. Thirty-five years ago he married French, of North Norway, who survives him, together with their two children Arthur, who with his family lives at home and Charlotte, who married Wynan Kimball and lives in Sweden. About twenty-three years ago Mr. Kingman moved to South Waterford, where he has since lived, working at his trade of carpenter, painter and paper-hanger, and in nearly every home there are evidences of his skillful handiwork. Although in failing health for a number of years, he still kept at his work whenever it was possible for him to do so.

The funeral was held at his late home and the house was crowded with relatives and friends. There was a large delegation from Valley Spring Lodge K. of P. and from the Pythian Temple. Mr. Kingman was a charter member of both these orders.

He leaves besides his immediate family, one brother, Charles Kingman of New Hampshire and three grandchildren; also a host of friends, who added their floral tributes to the profusion of beautiful flowers from relatives and the secret orders.

Mr. Kingman always had a smile and pleasant greeting for every one whom he met, and we miss his kindly presence from our midst.

FACTS ABOUT FOOD

Cheese is an excellent tissue builder and an economical food.

Granulated sugar has only a little more nourishment per pound than honey or molasses.

Nuts have a high protein content and can take the place of meat on the menu.

Agricultural scientists maintain that there is more food value in one acre of beets than in four acres of wheat.

The high flavors of cheeses are due to the natural ripening process.

Milk, the only complete food, contains all the food elements the body requires and in their proper proportions.

Almonds are so rich in protein and fats that a pound of the shelled nuts is equal in food value to three pounds of beef-steak.

Cheese making is now one of the most important and profitable industries in the United States.

Hickory nuts, English walnuts, pecans, hazelnuts and filberts are not only palatable in muffins, cakes and yeast bread, but add much to the food value.

A calorie of nutrition is equivalent to the amount of heat sufficient to raise the temperature of a pint of water 4 degrees Fahrenheit.

As ye would that men should do to you do ye even so unto men. How many obey this command of Christ's? Yet people attend and belong to the church and exhort and testify that they are Christians but for the paltry sum of a few dollars they deny Christ and lie and cheat their fellow men. The eagle on the Almighty dollar is more to them than their hope of Heaven is and for that they crucify afresh the Lord whom they profess to love. The word says if ye love me keep my commandments and if a man hath plenty of this world's goods and shutteth up his bowels of compassion, how drearily the love of God in him. In the end they will be weighed in the balance and found wanting.
